In requesting the resignation of State Biologist Finley, the Fish and Game Commission half-way apologizes for the step in a statement recently issued. Such apology is unnecessary. Finley is a talented individual who has gone to seed. Lacking a good balance wheel, his head was turned with what he believed was success founded on unmatch-able ability. He became obsessed with the idea that everyone was trying to steal the things of the earth below and the air above and he was the Moses that was going to preserve them for posterity.

He has thousands of prototypes in the federal employ, for conservation, but of such a character as to practically prevent the use of the artificially conserved. The one and overweening desire is to insure a tighter grip on their jobs, extend their influence and develop the power of their bureau. Such men are a curse to our government, city, state and national, and the sooner we drive out this class of rats the better it will be for the preservation of constitutional government.

The Fish and Game Commission did a good job when they amputated Finley from the payroll. Let us hope every department of the state government will pursue a similar policy.

It is unlawful in Turkey to seize a man's residence for debt, and sufficient land to support him is also exempt from seizure.

A curious means of communication is the 'drum language' of a tribe in the Congo. These people can by this means converse with each other at considerable distances.

HARRY HAD TO GO SOME, BUT GOT THE FEATURE FILM

The matinee crowd at the Liberty Theater yesterday afternoon saw "Broken Blossoms" as advertised. but Harry Poole, manager of the show house spent several dollars and several anxious waiting hours before he was finally able to produce the film.

A wreck on the main line near Redding Saturday made it necessary to transfer around the blockade but express was not transferred and among the other packages was "Broken Blossoms." When the manager found his much heralded film was due to arrive 24 hours late he did some rapid fire thinking, as the result of which and by aid of the telegraph, one railway motor "speeder" started from the other end with the picture and one started from this end, meeting at Grass Lake, where the local car secured the film and returned.

In consequence "Broken Blossoms" was a couple hours late, but the crowd rather enjoyed the wait, being entertained meanwhile by several other good reels of pictures, with selections by the Peerless orchestra interspersed, and every once in a while exciting announcements by the theatre manager on the progress that "Broken Blossoms" was making in trying to keep the date with the crowd. The detailed story of the race would itself be a fine framework for a six-reel thriller.

A snail, crawling without a pause, would occupy fourteen days five hours to travel a mile.

CHANCE TO SHOW WHAT YOU KNOW ABOUT BEEF.

If you believe you have a critical eye for the weight of a beef steer, there's a chance to test your judgment in guessing the weight of three fat Christmas beeves on the hook at the People's market. A number of people cast a knowing eye on the slightly sides Saturday and registered an opinion. As some were merely hazarding a guess the estimates range far and wide. After serving as the center of the guessing contest the beeves will be distributed as per usual to form the central attraction for many a holiday meal.
